

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A compound motor includes a plurality of motors, and each motor has a rotor connected to a rotating member that is rotatably supported. All rotating members share the same axis of rotation, and the stator windings of the motors have different numbers of poles.